Figure 6.1 displays a grid of 100 small bar charts, each representing the distribution of the number of children per family for a specific country. The countries are listed in the top row, and the number of children (0 to 10) is listed in the left column. Each chart shows the percentage of families with a given number of children. The distributions vary significantly between countries, with some showing a high percentage of families with many children and others showing a high percentage of families with few children.
